Amendment Text (Please write legibly):

6.4 INTERNATIONAL FOOD AID

International food aid program budgets have been reduced over the years due to fiscal constraints. NASDA believes that providing humanitarian assistance in the form of food is important and should continue to be supported by the United States.

(new language)

Commodity procurement and payment policies for food aid programs must reflect commercial terms and practices to be competitive with the private sector. Competitive procurement offerings encourage broad vendor participation, including small businesses, thereby keeping food aid commodity acquisition costs at fair market values.
